SUBJECT: CZECHS TRANSFERRING PNR DATA UNDER LEGAL LIMBO

REF: A. PRAGUE 00804

1B. BRUSSELS 01829

11. Despite the passing of the European Court of Justice September 30 deadline for the nullification of the U.S. - E.U. passenger name record (PNR) agreement, the Czech national airline, CSA, continues to transfer passenger records to U.S. authorities but without the consent and legal cover of the Czech Office for Personal Data Protection. According to the Office's Head of Registration Division David Burian, CSA's application for transferring passenger records is pending. CSA applied for transfer authority on September 12, but Burian said the application remains incomplete and CSA promises to comply. Burian is aware of CSA's current transfers and respects the practice, but cannot grant legal authority or cover to do so until he has a completed application from CSA. He indicated that his office would likely grant temporary transfer authority for six-month intervals, but would not directly say so given CSA's pending status.
